

LOVE and MARRIED LIFE

by the noted author
Idah McGlone Gibson

Waltzed to the Mirror
The words of my nurse gave my mind an interest in another direction. I knew that she was right, although I did not tell her so. I did have to have an interest, an absorbing interest, to keep my mind from growing morbid. In this I am only very human. I think most of the unrest of the world is caused by lives which are devoid of interest.

That women compose the real sex is perfectly natural because women have fewer interests than men. Most of them are absorbed in some man and whether that man is husband, son or lover, the result does not always make for peace.

In this transition period most women are unhappy. We have lost a great deal of the home interest simply because it is the ambition of every man to relieve his wife of every home duty; and we have not yet become satisfied with the frivolities and foolish social amenities with which men would fill our existence. We are not yet sure enough about what we really want to seek it.

Realizes Her Limitations
I fully realize that I am not as strong a woman as Alice, who is able to look forward and grasp all the new ideas that come to the modern woman. She is a woman who is able to vision life as a man sees it. Neither am I as splendid as Helen in allowing my emotions to be all in all to me. Helen practically has said to the world: "Love is all there is of life," while Alice insists that love is only an incident.

What I want and what seems to me that which can only make life enjoyable is a plane of existence where both heart and head are satisfied. I am quite sure that I only want John to treat me as a comrade as well as a sweetheart. I want him to think of me as a woman with a mind as well as a woman who is all heart and who has placed that heart irrevocably in his keeping.

I was still thinking all these thoughts and trying to adjust myself to the queer angle of life in which I found I was huddled, when John came up the stairs and exclaimed upon seeing me up and dressed.
"You are the most surprising little creature, Katherine! One moment you look and act as though you were at death's door, and the next you are quite the liveliest bit of femininity I know!"

With this he brought me toward him with a caressing gesture and fairly waltzed me over to the mirror. And what I saw there gave truth to his words. I had dressed myself all in white, for although I do not believe as I have often said to all my friends, in mourning garments even when those nearest and dearest are taken, yet it seemed to me quite appropriate that I should wear white on my first public appearance after losing my mother.

Dear sainted soul the blackness of the modern mourning crape, even more inappropriate to commemorate her passing than it would be in most cases. I knew my mother was glad to go. For though she loved me devotedly her heart had not been on this earth since my father had gone from it.

As I looked at myself in the glass, with John's face just behind my shoulder, I could not help thinking that he had told the truth. Even to myself I seemed more alive than I had been since the automobile accident. There was color in my cheeks, my eyes were sparkling, and my lips were a scarlet bow. I also noticed that with my bobbed hair I looked much younger than I had done for many years.

John's face was smiling, the smile which always intrigued me and always made my heart beat a little faster.
Questioned By John
"Oh, girl, girl," he said, "why don't you fulfill the promise of your youthfulness? Why do you try to live upon your shoulders all the affairs of life from which I would shield you?"

"Simply, John," I answered, "because however young my face may look, my brain has grown with the years. Why, do you know, dear, if I were what you would have me be, I would be one of those awful things that the reformers of the world are now studying and thinking and writing so much about."
"Goodness, gracious, what is that?" asked John with an indulgent smile.
"A moron," I answered.
"You do think of the most horrible things," said John, a little gruffly. "Why don't you know that a moron is an irresponsible member of society?"

"Isn't that what you would have me be?" I said as I slipped my hand in his and pulled him gently toward the door.
Tomorrow—My Mother's Will

HARRY M'AVOY, well known Los Angeles hotel man who says he spent a small fortune and had every treatment money could buy without getting relief, until he tried Tanlac. Says he suffered for twenty years.

"In 1900 I suffered a general breakdown and during these 20 years I spent a small fortune searching for health," said Harry M'Avoy, with the Alexandria Hotel of Los Angeles, one of the largest and finest hotels in southern California.

"I went to the best specialists in New York, Chicago, New Orleans and Seattle. I tried every medicine and treatment money could buy, but the best I could do was to get a little temporary relief. Finally I gave up completely under the strain and had to quit work altogether. I was terribly discouraged over my condition and felt that I would be an invalid for the rest of my days."

"I had indigestion in its very worst form. In fact, I was a confirmed dyspeptic; nothing agreed with me and I suffered from all the terrible symptoms of indigestion. My heart palpitated so badly I thought I had heart trouble and I would get so weak and faint at times I would stagger and several times I fell flat in my tracks before I could support myself."

"I was absolutely afraid to eat, for it meant nothing but suffering afterward and I would have awful pains and burnings in the stomach and chest. 'Stop!' Why, I didn't know what it was to get a night's sleep! I would lie in bed a while and then get so restless I would have to get up and walk the floor. I was almost a nervous wreck and couldn't even sit still and write a letter. I lost so much weight and strength I was almost too weak to walk, and I honestly believe no man in this world suffered any more than I did."

"Last September I realized I could hold out no longer, and as I had read a great deal about Tanlac, I made up my mind to give it a trial. Well, sir, it was the greatest and happiest surprise of my life, for I began to feel better right away. My appetite improved, I began to sleep better and my strength gradually returned. So I kept right on taking the medicine and in only a few weeks' time my troubles had all left me and I found I had gained 15 pounds in weight."

"From that day to this I have positively been in the best health I ever enjoyed in all my life. I never have an ache or pain. I eat anything I want and don't suffer any bad after-effects at all. In fact I feel just like a new man and have plenty of strength and energy. My nerves are steady and strong, I never have a dizzy spell and my sleep is restful and refreshing."

"Tanlac has been worth its weight in gold to me and all the money or earth could not buy the good it has done me."

May Change Religious Basis for Y. W. C. A.

CLEVELAND, O., April 20.—Plans to make the basis of membership in the Young Women's Christian Association on the personal faith declaration rather than Protestant church affiliations, were started at the closing session of the sixth national convention. Appointment of a commission to study the question in associations other than student organizations was provided in a resolution adopted.

Ratifying the work of the national board during the last five years, delegates today re-elected the 20 members including Mrs. Finley J. Shepard of New York, who resigned last Saturday, following the adoption of the industrial and social program. The membership of the board was increased to 50, fifteen of whom were appointed today.

Apportionment of a minimum budget of $5,000,000 to be raised in 1921 for national work, was made among eleven fields.

Following the announcement of a $500,000 gift from the Laura Spelman Rockefeller memorial fund, action was taken to increase the endowment fund of the Association to $10,000,000 by January 1, 1925.

SUGAR HEARING TAKEN UP AGAIN

Cross Examination of John A. Hendrickson by Attorney Is Under Way

SALT LAKE, April 20.—Cross-examination of John A. Hendrickson by Herbert R. McMillan, attorney for the Amalgamated Sugar company, occupied the greater part of yesterday's session of the sugar hearing before Judge Joseph J. Dunham, examiner for the federal trade commission, of the complaint against the Utah-Idaho Sugar company, the Amalgamated company and others. Mr. Hendrickson, one of the promoters and formerly president of the West Cache Sugar company, had testified on direct examination concerning alleged interference by the big companies with his project to put a factory on the west side of the Bear river in Cache county.

The questions asked of Mr. Hendrickson were devoted principally towards bringing out that he went into the sugar factory promotion business purely for personal gain, and furthermore, to discredit the previous statements made by Mr. Hendrickson.

Refers to Decision.
Mr. McMillan's efforts towards the latter object were directed chiefly through the introduction into the record of this hearing of testimony, the complaint, answers, and final decree of the Third district court of the case of the West Cache Sugar company against Mr. Hendrickson and Lorenzo M. Stohl.

In that case, the trial of which was held a year ago, judgment was awarded the plaintiff of $150,850 for "secret profits" taken from the company in their promotion.

Mr. Hendrickson denied that he started his projected factory for the sole purpose of forcing the Amalgamated to buy him out, but said that his partner, Mr. Stohl, was willing to sell at any time, and that he got "cold feet" and wanted to get out. The witness denied that he had inserted an article into the corporation papers for the purpose of facilitating a transfer of control.

Counsel for the Amalgamated read into the record a part of the amended answer of the witness in the previous trial, in which it was set forth that he and Mr. Stohl were in a position to sell to any person at a profit after they had completed their contracts for the Knight-Canadian plant and its transfer to this country. Mr. Hendrickson said the answer, to which he had previously sworn, was incorrect in that he, Hendrickson, was willing to sell only on condition that the plant be erected in the West Cache district.

Lawyer Tells Why.
At this point Henry Ward Beer, special attorney for the federal trade commission, conducting the case for the government, interposed objections to the form of right cross-examination and asked Mr. Macmillan what was its purpose. To this Mr. Macmillan replied, in part:

"We want the commission to understand just what caliber of man this witness is who is making charges against some of the best citizens in Utah. We have reason to believe that Mr. Hendrickson is one of the parties responsible for the bringing of this complaint, and it is our purpose to show the commission that here is a man who cannot be relied upon under oath."

Mr. Macmillan introduced a letter from George T. Odell to show that Mr. Odell, W. W. Armstrong and other Salt Lake men who had subscribed $9,000 to the stock of Mr. Hendrickson's first enterprise had done so on the distinct understanding that the Utah-Idaho and the Amalgamated would have 50 per cent of the stock in the company.

Then Mr. Beer stated that he will prove that Mr. Odell went to the United States district attorney, then W. W. Day, to get protection for the contemplated company against the Utah-Idaho Sugar company.

It was shown that the first contracts for beets put out by Mr. Hendrickson's company contained a proviso that his concern would pay the farmers whatever the Amalgamated company would pay. A session of a discussion of this question was going on that Mr. Hendrickson took occasion to pass a few compliments concerning Ernest R. Woolley, who succeeded Mr. Hendrickson as president of the West Cache company, and who, as president, had instigated the suit against Messrs. Hendrickson and Stohl.

LETTER FROM MRS. BRUCE

Tells Remarkable Story of Sickness and Recovery.

Brookings, Ind.—"When I was a young girl I clerked in my father's store and one day I lifted heavy boxes which caused displacement and I suffered greatly. I was married at the age of eighteen and went to a doctor about my trouble and he said if I had a child I would be all right. After three years' trials came to us and I did get all right but I was troubled again. I could scarcely do any work at all and suffered for four years. A neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it for a year or more. Now I have a baby girl and do not have any female trouble. You can do anything you like with my letter to help others."

Those Pearly Teeth

Learn how people get them

All statements approved by high dental authorities

Millions of people have adopted a new teeth cleaning method. Wherever you look you see pearly teeth nowadays. Let this ten-day test reveal what this method means to you.

End the cloudy film

Most teeth are dimmed by film. A viscous film clings to them, enters crevices and stays. Most tooth troubles are now traced to it.

It is this film-coat that discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea, and very few people escape it.

The ordinary tooth paste does not dissolve it, so the tooth brush does not end it. Thus most people suffer from that film.

Now dental science, after years of searching, has found a way to combat it. Able authorities have amply proved its efficiency. Now leading dentists everywhere advise it, and millions of people have come to employ it.

The New-Day Dentifrice

A scientific film combatant which, after 5 years' tests, is now advised by leading dentists everywhere

A Gift
A 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent is sent to all who ask. See coupon.

Everyone is welcome

Now this new method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. And everyone is welcome to a ten-day test.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

Pepsin long seemed impossible. It must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. But science has found a harmless activating method, and pepsin can be every day applied.

Two other new-day requisites are combined in Pepsodent. So this method in three ways brings unique results, and everyone should know them.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coat disappears. It will be a revelation.

Do this for your sake and your family's sake. Judge the method by results. Cut out the coupon now, for few things are more important than whiter, safer teeth.

'Hope Chest' of Maude Tabor Among Evidence remarkable state of preservation due to its embalming. It was clad in a mild gown. A medical examination disclosed that the young woman was o have become a mother.

Search was made immediately for Mrs. Tabor and her son. They were found through the enterprise of a Chicago newspaper. Then some one remembered that Virgo had seemed attentive to Maude for a time, and he was brought into the case. He admitted before a coroner's jury that he had been in Maude's company for several months while she was teaching school in Kalamazoo, but denied he had married her or that he was the father of her unborn child.

Contradicts Statements.
"Maude left Kalamazoo and went back to Lawton in February, 1916," he said. "From then on I never saw her live. When I called at her home about two months later her mother told me she had died out west."

He then admitted that he had made inquiries of Mrs. Tabor as to the circumstances surrounding the death of her daughter, which was considered strange, in view of their former friendship.

When Mrs. Tabor was brought back to Lawton, however, she contradicted Virgo's statements on numerous points, chief of which was that he had been married to Maude at LaGrande, Ind. They lived together only a day, he testified, Maude then returning to Lawton.

Then, in answer to the state's attorney's questions, she admitted that her daughter had died in her arms at 1 o'clock in the morning of May 2, 1916. She said that she had kept the body in a room in the house for a week before dressing it in bridal garments and hiding it in the "hope chest" which once had contained

Amnesty for Political Prisoners Is Sought

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Amnesty for "victims of war passions," who still are held in prison for political offenses was asked in a memorial left at the White House by a delegation representing citizens' amnesty committees in Chicago, New York and other cities. Rudolph Foster, executive secretary of the White House, received the delegation and said he would lay the petition before the president.

Wear Cheap Uniforms Police Are Advised

SAN DIEGO, April 20.—Following a request by members of the police department for a salary increase of $20 a month, because of the high cost of uniforms, the city council here adopted a resolution authorizing all city employees to wear clothing of khaki or other cheap material and urging department heads to prescribe low priced but durable materials for employees' clothing.

many bits of finery treasured by Maude in anticipation of the time she would become a bride.

The reason I hid the body was because of an agreement Maude and I had, the wrinkled old woman declared. "We promised each other once we would be buried in the same grave. I wanted to keep her body above earth till I died. Besides, I wanted to keep Maude's death a secret because certain persons would have harmed me, and I didn't want Virgo to come and take the body from me."

Other Daughter Sits.
Mrs. Tabor refused to be drawn out regarding the "certain persons" she mentioned. She also denied that she knew anything of the criminal operation or the overdose of chloroform, which the coroner's jury found caused Maude's death.

Her other daughter, Mrs. Critchlow, also an honor graduate of the state university and a poet and author, has refused to make any statement concerning the case since her finding of the body, even before the coroner's jury. She is regarded as an important witness. In court, of course, she will have to testify or go to jail.

Since her indictment on the murder charge Mrs. Tabor has been held in jail without bail. Despite her age, she has displayed a mentality so nimble that she has baffled questioners time after time, and the prosecution expects a hard time of it in getting at the heart of the mystery.

Treaty Comes In.
ATLANTA, Ga., April 20.—Georgia Democrats today were balloting in the state wide presidential preference primary. Candidates for support of the state delegation at the San Francisco convention were Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, generally described as the Wilson candidate and an avowed opponent of the league of nations as framed at Versailles, and Senator Hoke Smith and Thomas E. Watson. Senator Smith supported the Republican reservations to the league covenant, while Mr. Watson is opposed to the league in any form.

Officers Who Gave Up Maubeuge on Trial

PARIS, April 19.—(Havas).—The trial of Brig. Gen. Fournier, commander of the French fortress of Maubeuge, at the beginning of the war, General Ville, Col. Chartier and other officers accused of abandoning their posts in the face of the enemy by surrendering Maubeuge to the Germans in September, 1914, began for the second time before a court martial. General Maistre who commanded the French army which conquered the last remaining German positions in the Chemin des Dames, presided.

The first trial was commenced in November, 1919, but the government requested a postponement, which was granted.
